DEMOCRAT DAY.

GROVER CLEVELAND AGAIN ASSUMES THE REINS OF GOVERNMENT.

Washington Full of Enthusiastic Democrats, Who March and Shout in the Rain and Snow.

Washington, March 4.—Grover Cleveland, of New York, thrice nominated for President of the United States and twice elected, was today successfully inducted into that high office for his second term, with all appropriate ceremonies, the gathering of a mighty multitude, and with the accompaniment of a blinding snow-storm. Notwithstanding every disadvantage of weather, the last occasion was greater than the first.

At least 40,000 men with a heaven of fair women marched to-day along the great national avenue to or from the Capitol. Had the atmospheric conditions been anything like favorable instead of being as bad as could possibly be, there would probably have been 100,000 men and a number of ladies marching or riding in the parade, as against 25,000 in 1885.

The enthusiasm possessed by the visitors, however, was more than surface deep, and without complaint they braved the disagreeable weather and waited patiently for the time to move when they joined in the march.

The reviewing stand, designated by an immense flag flying from it, was situated immediately in front of the Executive Mansion and on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue. Acres of humanity, surging like a sea, occupied every available spot of ground in the vicinity, and as the President made his appearance another cheer signalled his presence and was taken up and echoed down the avenues and byways like the roar of a troubled ocean. With head erect and standing firmly with his impassive features facing the procession, President Cleveland reviewed the military, civic and political organization that made up the line of march.

The inaugural parade, which was under the command of Gen. Martin, G. M. Mahon, of New York, Grand Marshal, was composed of two grand divisions, each grand division being in turn subdivided into divisions and brigades. The United States forces, which led the parade were under the command of Brig. Gen. John R. Brooke, and presented a solidly impressive appearance. All commissioned and other officers carrying swords gave the military salute as they passed in review, turning toward President Cleveland as they did so. The imperturbable President returned the salute by raising his hat, accompanied by an almost imperceptible nod.

To describe the vast procession, embracing so many organizations, would take too much space for this paper. Many of the magnificent clubs, companies and delegations, attracted great attention and outbursts of applause greeted them on every hand. As the governors of the several States passed the reviewing stand, leading the military and civic organizations of their States, there were occasional outbursts of enthusiasm that throughout the vast throng. Gov. Patterson, of Pennsylvania; Ex-Gov. Lee, of Virginia; Gov. West, of New Jersey, attracted unusual attention. The governors of eleven States were present, and accompanied by their aids. Tammany Hall, headed by Governor Flower, had 3000 braves in line. Every available inch of space along the line of march was occupied, and seats sold from $5 each up and down.

The parade today was greater in numbers and more imposing in military and civic display than that of any previous inauguration. Gen. Martin, G. M. Mahon, of New York, the Grand Capital Hill as far as the eye could reach from the eastern front of the Capitol was as undulating sea of humanity, assembled to witness the inaugurating of the oath of office to President Cleveland by the Chief Justice of the United States, and to hear as many of them as could get within ear shot, the inaugural address. The inaugural stand was on the east portico of the Capitol. An hour previous to the President, Vice-President-elect Stevenson was sworn in by the retiring Vice-President, in the Senate chamber. At 1:35 the doors, leading to the east portico, swung open, and the stand began to be animated by the presence of those who were to occupy it.

Then came Sergeant-at-Arms Valentine and Senators Teller, McPherson and Ransom, of the Committee of Arrangements, preceding President Harrison and President-elect Cleveland, who walked side by side. Behind the incoming and outgoing Presidents followed members of the Senate and an unusually large contingent from the Diplomatic Corps, members of the House of Representatives, Governors of States and other official persons.

The President and President-elect, Vice-President Morton, Chief Justice Fuller and the Committee on Arrangements were shown to the front platform, where, within a railled inclosure, had been laid a bright green carpet, upon which had been placed large leather covered chairs, several tables, a reading desk and other furnishings which gave a bright touch to the scene. Mr. Cleveland was warmly greeted by the patient throng gathered about the stand, and after a few minutes of delay stepped to the front and began the delivery of his inaugural address.

At the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Cleveland turned around to the Chief Justice, who was attired in the robes of his office, to take the oath prescribed by the Constitution. Chief Justice Fuller and the other persons near to the President removed their hats and with bared heads listened to the taking of the oath of office, which was pronounced by Chief Justice Fuller in a clear voice. Mr. Cleveland assented to it by bowing his head and kissing the Bible. The oath taken by the President is what is known as the Constitution oath, and reads as follows:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The Bible used in the ceremony was given President Cleveland by his mother, forty-nine years ago.

CLEVELAND'S CABINET.

THE MEN WHO WILL BE THE PRESIDENT'S ADVISERS.

SIX OF THE EIGHT LAWYERS.

Lamont and Morton are old Newspaper Men, and Smith is Both a Lawyer and a Journalist.—The Careers of Gresham, Carlisle, Bissell, Herbert and Olney.

In his choice of a cabinet President Cleveland has particularly honored the legal profession. Six out of the eight portfolios went to lawyers, and old newspaper men secured the remaining two. The legal luminaries are Walter Q. Gresham, John G. Carlisle, Hilary A. Herbert, Hoke Smith, Wilson S. Bissell and Richard Olney. The newspaper men are Daniel S. Lamont and J. Sterling Morton, and Mr. Smith is also prominent in the newspaper world in the south.

Walter Quinton Gresham, the premier of the Cleveland administration, is now 61 years of age. March has been an important month in his career, for he was born at Lanesville, Ind., March 17, 1832, and in March 1893, he assumes the office of secretary of state, the highest place in the gift of the president elect. It is odd, too, that he was born in Harrison county, and that 60 years later he should refuse to support for president the grandson of the man from whom the county of his birth took its name. Mr. Gresham was born on a farm in a rather wild locality, and when he was only two years old Sheriff Gresham, his father, was killed by a desperado. There were six children for the widow to support, but young Gresham managed to get a good education and became a lawyer. When the Republican party was organized, he joined it and took up the anti-slavery cause.

When the war broke out, Gresham led a company of home guards into the federal service, and for gallant services rose gradually in rank until he was made a brigadier-general at Vicksburg. In July 1864, he was disabled by a mine ball which broke his leg as he was leading a charge. General Grant made him United States district judge, and he served for 12 years, during which time not a single one of his decisions was reversed by the United States supreme court. Judge Gresham received many honors at President Arthur's hands. He was successively made postmaster general, secretary of the treasury and United States judge for the Seventh district at Chicago. In October, 1892, after he had refused the People's party nomination for president, he announced that he would vote for Cleveland.

John Griffin Carlisle, the new secretary of the treasury, is one of the best known Democrats in the country. He was born in Kentucky 57 years ago, received a common school education and later taught school at Covington. He was admitted to the bar in 1858, was a member of the state house of representatives the two years following, and beginning in 1866 served two terms in the state senate. In 1868 he was delegate at large to the national Democratic convention at New York, and he served as lieutenant governor of his state from 1871 to 1875. The year following the budding young statesman was sent to congress, where for 17 years as congressman, speaker of the house and senator he made a great name for himself. He has only been in the senate since May, 1890, but resigned when Mr. Cleveland called him to the cabinet. Mr. Carlisle's family consists of himself, Mrs. Carlisle and two sons, Logan and Walter K. Carlisle.

Daniel S. Lamont, secretary of war, first achieved fame as private secretary to President Cleveland during his first term. His career has been a very interesting one. He was born in Cortland county, N. Y., 42 years ago of Scotch parents, and when only 12 years of age he went to work in a newspaper office. His first public office was a deputy clerkship in New York, and in 1870, 1871 and 1875 he was clerk in the New York state assembly. The two following years he was chief clerk in the state department at Albany, and during Governor Tilden's administration Lamont was regarded as his confidential man. In 1883 he was appointed private military secretary of Governor Grover Cleveland, and thus secured his title as colonel.

When Mr. Cleveland went to Washington as president, Lamont accompanied him. He already possessed a great reputation as a model private secretary—alert, keen, even tempered, diplomatic and silent—and after he had been at Washington a short time he was generally regarded as the most able private secretary a president had ever possessed. His tact, shrewdness, ability and popularity made him one of the most conspicuous figures of the president's official family.

Hilary A. Herbert, secretary of the navy, has served several years as chairman of the house naval committee at Washington and is said to know more about the navy than any other man in Congress. He was born at Laurensville, S. C., in March, 1834, and moved to Alabama when he was 12 years old. He became a lawyer, but dropped his books at the breaking out of the war and entered the Confederate army as captain. He became a colonel through gallant services and was disabled at the battle of the Wilderness in 1864. He practiced his profession at Greenville, Ala., until 1872, when he removed to Montgomery, his present home. His first important political office was that of congressman, and he has served as a member of the Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh, Forty-eighth, Fortyninth, Fiftieth, Fifty-first and Fifty-second congresses.

Hoke Smith, secretary of the interior, was born 38 years ago in North Carolina. He removed to Georgia with his parents, and after receiving his education in the Atlanta schools became the principal of the girl's high school. While instructing pupils there he studied law and admitted to the bar in 1876. In the practice of his profession he was frequently retained in suits against railroads, and for years he has been known as a fearless enemy of grasping corporations. Having made a fortune out of his practice, Mr. Smith purchased the Atlanta Journal and made it one of the leading daily newspapers of the south. He is known as the "original Cleveland man of Georgia," having espoused the president elect's cause when he had need of friends in that state. He is over 6 feet tall and weighs 260 pounds. He was originally named Michael Hoke Smith, but early in life he dropped the Michael and signed himself Hoke Smith.

Wilson Shannon Bissell, postmaster general, is physically the biggest man in the cabinet, with the possible exception of Mr. Smith, but he is fully as well equipped with brain as he is with brawn. Mr. Bissell has long been known as "Boss Friend" Bissell because of his nearness to Mr. Cleveland and because of the fact that he was for some time the president's law partner at Buffalo. He was born in Oneida county, N. Y., 46 years ago and is a graduate of Yale. He studied law at Buffalo with A. P. Lansing, who later formed a partnership with Grover Cleveland and Oscar P. Ostrom.

Richard Olney, attorney general, is one of the best known lawyers in New England. Mr. Olney has twice refused the proffer of a seat on the supreme bench of Massachusetts. One year, merely to oblige his party friends, he accepted the Democratic nomination for attorney general, but was defeated. The only time he ever bolted the Democratic ticket was when General Butler ran for governor. His extreme modesty has thus far impelled him to refuse to allow his picture to be published.

J. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture, was born at Adams, Jefferson county, N. Y., April 22, 1832. He was graduated from Union college. Removing to Nebraska, he became the editor of the Nebraska City News, was twice elected to the territorial legislature and in 1868 became the acting governor of the state, but was defeated. For years he has devoted himself to the cultivation of trees and the preservation of forests.

Has a Stone Coffin.

Lexington, Ky., March 2.—Steven Lanford, a wealthy farmer of Madison county, has just had completed for himself here a stone coffin. It weighs about 1,500 pounds, and is made of Kentucky Limestone, quarried from Langford's farm. He is eighty years old, but is apparently in the best of health. He says that the country around his home is over-run with polecats, minks and groundhogs, and he believes the only way to keep them from devouring his body after death is to have it buried in a stone coffin.

MURDERED AND CREMATED.

A New Phase to the Greenville Cremation.

Greenville, Ky., March 2.—There is a horrible suspicion that Cyrus Lee, his brother, sister, wife and child were murdered and Mr. Lee's residence set on fire to hide the evidence of the crime. Lee was an influential and wealthy farmer, and was married about a year ago. He had one child. Living with him were his brother and sister. His residence was an elegant frame building. Nothing is known of the origin of the fire or what occurred while it was burning. The five bodies were found in the ruins, all burned to a crisp, and the house and contents in a mass of ruins. It was impossible to distinguish one corpse from another, so complete was the work of cremation. Residents of that section of the neighborhood saw a blaze and smoke at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, and by the time the people had assembled everything was in ruins. If murder and robbery were committed, all traces are lost, and as none of the occupants of the house escaped, it is the common belief that a frightful wholesale slaughter was committed, the house robbed of all its valuables and the torch applied, which reduced everything to a charred mass. An investigation is in progress, but there is little hope expressed of ever ferreting out the crime, if one was committed.

LOOK TO YOUR GOLD.

Banks are hoarding it in Anticipation of an Advance in its Value.—Other Main Street News.

[Courier-Journal.] Gold is getting scarce. Banks are holding it in reserve and the Western Union Telegraph Company, which has heretofore always paid employees in gold, used currency for last month's work. E. C. Bohne, cashier of the Third National Bank, speaking of the matter yesterday, said:

"Many of the banks are holding gold for the reserve funds instead of greenbacks. This is in anticipation of a premium on gold. Imports have been enormous of late and the balance of trade is against the United States. The non-action on the silver question also causes gold to be held. If silver becomes the standard, then gold will be held at a premium."

"There is now in circulation $650,000,000 of gold. The banks of New York have already come to the rescue of the Government, giving gold for currency to keep up the reserve. In January the imports were decidedly heavy and the balance of trade was against the United States a matter of $96,000,000.—When it comes to paying this I anticipate a very heavy demand for gold."

"The Third National is hoarding its gold, as are also nearly all the banks in New York. It has always been the custom when Western banks wanted currency for the New York banks to deposit gold in the Treasury, whereupon the Government would send the currency free of charge. Now the banks hold the gold and send the currency themselves, paying eighty cents per thousand dollars express charges. This, you see, puts a premium of .08 cents on every dollar of gold."

Will Photograph the Prisoners.

Warden Norman, of the Frankfort penitentiary, is figuring on an improvement for the State prison. He intends to place a photographic outfit in the office and snatch the shadow of every convict who is sent there. The picture will be filed for future reference. A system of measurements will also be established, as to the height, length of limbs, feet, fingers, and the like, and in this way an accurate picture and description of every convict will be secured. It will greatly facilitate the work of capturing escaped prisoners, and the plan does credit to Warden Norman, who has novel himself to be the right man in the right place. Paducah News.

The House of Episcopal Bishops, in session in New York last week passed resolutions declaring that the legislation against the Chinese race is "not only essentially unjust and in violation of the most venerable traditions of our government."

The Crittenden Press

ISSUED WEEKLY.

R. C. WALKER, Publisher.

Dr. Todd.

SHADY GROVE, Ky., March 8, '93.
Seeing that the race for the State Senate is likely to be of considerable interest in the Democratic ranks and that several names are being floated for that honor, you will allow me to line in the press in which to suggest in that connection our friend and neighbor, Dr. J. N. Todd. The Doctor has always taken an interest in political matters and has worked earnestly and zealously for the party and its candidates, and in every contest has pulled in the harness cheerfully and with effort. He has heretofore been before the party, but when he and his friends thought that a serious and possibly disastrous to the party he has sacrificed his individual aspirations for the sake of harmony and put his shoulder to the wheel and with might and main worked for the success of his more persistent rival. He has been more devoted to his party than to his personal promotion. And while the Doctor may not be the kind of master that would allow his Democratic friends out of his way, yet we venture the assertion that if his party would give him the track he would "give on the armor" and make such a thorough and intelligent canvass that this district would be redeemed and disenthralled from Republicanism and People partyism for all time to come. Democrat.

The country is Democratic some more.

The Kansas Populists are no longer numerous. The Republicans are the dogs in the fight.

Grever, it is said, has eight Presidential chances in his pocket; if so, he is sticking closer to his church than to his party.

The Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners have directed the Attorney General to bring suit against the Mason-Forrest Company for the collection of the amount that firm owes the State. This is the business way of settling the Brown-Backner controversy, and the only way to ascertain the status of the accounts of the company with the State. If this method had been adopted at first, the unpleasant and unprofitable newspaper controversy would have been avoided.

Mr. Cleveland's inaugural address is a strong paper. He speaks plainly and unreservedly. On the financial question he says:

"Manifestly nothing is more vital to our supremacy as a nation, and to the beneficent purposes of our Government, than sound and stable currency. Exposure to degradation should at once arouse to activity the most enlightened statesmanship; and the danger of depreciation in the purchasing power of the wages paid to toil should furnish the incentive to prompt and conservative precaution. * * * In the meantime, so far as the executive branch of the Government can intervene, none of the powers with which it is invested will be withheld, when their exercise is deemed necessary to maintain our national credit or avert financial disaster."

In briefly referring to the tariff he says:

"The verdict of our voters, which condemned the injustice of maintaining protection for protection's sake, enjoins upon the people's servants the duty of exposing and destroying the breed of kindred evils which are the unwholesome progeny of paternalism. This is the duty of republican institutions and the constant peril of our Government by the people. * * * The acceptance of this principle leads to a refusal of bounties and subsidies which burden the labor and thrust of a portion of our citizens, to aid ill-attended or languishing enterprises in which they have no concern."

Referring to civil service reform he says:

through this instrumentality and the further usefulness it promises, entitle it to the hearty support and encouragement of all who desire to see our public services well performed or who hope for the elevation of political sentiment and the purification of political methods."

Referring to trusts and combinations formed to regulate price and production he says:

"To the extent that they can be reached and restrained by Federal power, the General Government should relieve our citizens from their interference and exactions."

In reference to the party's pledges, he says:

"Anxiety for the redemption of the pledges my party has made, and solicitude for the complete justification of the trust the people have reposed in us, constrain me to remind these with whom I am co-operating that we can succeed in doing the work which has been especially set before us only by the most sincere, harmonious and disinterested effort. Even if insuperable obstacles and opposition prevent the consummation of our task we shall hardly be excused; and if failure can be traced to our fault or neglect we may be sure the people will hold us to a swift and exacting accountability."

Suspected Murderer Breaks Jail.

Princeton, Ky., March 7.—Charles Johnson, accused of killing Policeman Cox at Lanesville last Christmas, has his escape trial at Edinburg today, and was held over under a $2,000 bond, in default of which he was committed to jail. This morning when the jailer went to feed the prisoners he found Johnson had gained his liberty.

His Way to Get Even.

Morganfield, Ky., March 7.—On the night of February 11 a rail was taken out of the Ohio Valley railroad track at Arocl Rock bridge, near Dickson, Union county. No clue was discovered until last night, when it was found that J. E. Thompson, a former section hand, had borrowed an ax from a negro on that night, and returned it battered and broken. A collar button was found near the track also, which was identified as Thompson's. It was further found that Thompson was very angry when discharged a few days before the attempted wrecking, and had jumped his board bill. He was followed up and arrested at Waverly.

The many men buy on credit and pay too much and then the merchants advertise to sell at cost, to try to meet their bills. The result is, you who buy from them get old goods at old prices, and are humbugged year in, and year out, and finally you fail, and your merchant fails. This novel method was adopted by a bright girl to get rid of a bean who persisted in staying very late. She gave him a paper and pencil with one of her sweetest smiles. "Now make a row eleven squares; now make a perpendicular mark downward on the right of the first square; upward on the right of the fourth; downward on the right of the fifth; upward on the right of the seventh and eight; downward on the tenth. The marks should be half an inch long." She asked him to read what he had written. The effect was electrical. Try it.

SETTLED AT LAST.

Marion to Have a New and Pretty Cemetery.

For a couple of years the people of Marion have been talking about a new cemetery. And efforts have been made to locate one and begin the work of beautifying it. After dragging along, the matter was finally settled Monday. A number of citizens visited the two places—one north of town, on J. P. Pierce's land, and the other west, on John Lamb's land. Monday night a meeting was held at the court house, and the merits of the two places fully discussed, and the propositions from each of the land owners heard. Both propositions were practically the same, and the preference of the meeting as to location was expressed by ballot, and the site west of town was chosen by a vote of 15 to 4. The land has been surveyed, and drives, walks and lots designated. It is a beautiful site, high and picturesque, and can be made a very beautiful place. The people should take hold of the matter and help to make what the community badly needs, a cemetery. County Court next Monday.

COURT AFFAIRS.

A $10,000 Damage Suit, and Other Cases.

A day or two since Mrs. Florence Burnett, through her attorneys, filed a damage suit against Mr. Sam Henry, of this place. The petition makes two allegations, each for $5,000 damages. The matter in plain terms is the plaintiff accuses the defendant of making statements derogatory to her character and asks for $10,000 damages.

W. M. Burton files suit against T. M. Young, asking judgment for $371, alleging that the defendant owes him that amount for board and washing.

E. L. Nunn, administrator of the estate of Chapel Nunn, filed suit for sale of the land and settlement of said estate.

W. L. Clement filed suit against P. B. Croft on an account of $75. The petition alleges that while the plaintiff and defendant were partners, the firm, at the instance of the defendant, sold goods to a third party, and the creditor failing to pay, the accounts of the firm, in dissolution of partnership, fell to the plaintiff, and he files suit to collect the $75.

Laura A. Armstrong has filed suit asking to be divorced from her husband Henry Armstrong.

There will probably be some litigation concerning the location of the new cemetery. Some of the citizens of that part of the town are up and in arms against its location, at the place chosen. Yesterday A. J. Chittenden, whose residence lot adjoins the cemetery lot, called at the Press office to express himself. He said: "The location of the cemetery there will injure my property at least $500. Nobody likes to live next door to the grave yard; besides this, the drainage will be right on me. I am going to fight it from the start; I have already employed an attorney, and some of my neighbors will do likewise. We propose to sue out an injunction, and by to-morrow the papers will be served. No, sir, I am not afraid of ghosts, spooks nor grave yard rabbits, but I don't propose to have the value of my property decreased 25 per cent. If I can help it, and we propose to spend some money to help it, too."

"I can't make butter out of this," said butter maker Lemon, of the Marion creamery, Monday; and as he spoke he brought to view a couple of pieces of ice, clear as crystal, and utterly devoid of the snowy color milk usually bears. The ice was taken from the bottom of the big weighing tub, into which the milk is placed when it comes to the creamery. The ice was, to all appearances, good milk when it was poured into the tub. The butter maker is of the opinion that some rain must have fallen in the milk while it was en route to the creamery, or else the effect of the low temperature, necessary to congeal it, changes the color of the white milk to the clear colorless ice.

Mr. L. H. James returned from Eddyville Saturday, where he had been engaged as counsel in the examining trial of Charles Johnson, charged with killing John Cox, at Lamasco, last December. Mr. James was employed by the friends of the dead man to assist in the prosecution. Johnson was held to answer the charge at the May term of the Lyon county circuit court.

Last week Mr. Jesse Crawford received a telegram from Washington, notifying him of his appointment to a department clerkship. He goes into the educational department, and gets a handsome salary. He was examined under the civil service law, and the appointment is the result of the examination. He has been one of the county's best teachers.

Wm. Clark, Sherman Clark and Hodge Fritts were before Police Judge Hearin Monday, charged with a breach of the peace. Fritts was fined $5; Wm. Clark one cent, and Sherman was acquitted. Thursday night they engaged in a little "crap" in front of the post office; nobody was seriously hurt.

The board of tax supervisors are getting their work; the "raisers" they have made could by no means be counted on the fingers, and the total increase would make a pretty handsome competency for the average Crittenden county man.

AT THE WORK.

The Board of Tax Supervisors Arranging for Invitation for Their Farewell Appearance.

In the court room yesterday were five men pouring over a long list of names, a big stack of big books, and long columns of figures. The men were A. A. Deboe, J. E. Dean, E. B. Blackburn, T. E. Griffith and J. A. Yandell. They were the tax supervisors, and so busy were they that they would not stop to invite a visitor in if one appeared at the door.

"John Doe, two hundred acres of land, $1000."

"Richard Roe, 100 acres $400."

"Gentlemen, what do you say to the way this land is listed." This would be something like the words the visitor would hear from the reading clerk; then the second member would say: "Roe's land is worth more money than that." The fourth chimed in: "yes, he ought to be raised."

Then somebody would say $600 would not be too much." All assented and Mr. Roe's list was augmented a couple of hundred.

Thus the work went on until all the Smiths, Jones and Browns in the county were called, and occasionally some fellow was "raised."

"Have you made much increase was asked. "We have finished all but two precincts, and the increase is now $60,000. Our total increases will be close to $75,000. Our work however is not final. We will probably adjourn today, and those parties whose list have been augmented will be summoned to appear before us ten days hence, and asked to show cause why these increases should not be made." Glancing over the clerk's shoulder at the list before him, the visitor readily concluded that there would be a good many summonses issued.

The Board adjourned to meet Monday March 20.

Monday, at Princeton, a Mr. Dudley was fined $600, and given 100 days in jail for selling liquor contrary to law.

J. W. Johnson has a Bradbury patching machine. Boing your shoes that need repairing and have them fixed at a small cost.

Cotton goods are high and still going up, but W. L. Clement will sell you good calico at 5 cents per yard, or good brown domestic at 5 cents per yard.

If you want a good thing on the farm, buy James' wagon bed lifter. Several farmers have already purchased, and they are well pleased with the useful article.

Mrs. Williams is in Louisville getting the latest styles in hats, trimmings, etc. When she returns Mrs. Lovings will have the most complete stock of millinery goods.

The District Mission Board of the Ohio River Association have discontinued preaching at Baker's school house, and Rev. Blackburn will not preach at that place hereafter.

Messrs. Fred Lemon, Thos. Davis and J. G. Gilbert would accept a storekeeper-gauger place under the new administration. They will notify the collector of their desire to accommodate him.

The following are the names of the pupils in the Primary Department, who recited the most number of perfect lessons in the month of February: Spelling, Mabel Guess; reading, Roy Lamb and Kay Kevil; arithmetic, Melrose Vernon and Ed Perry; geography, Kay Kevil; grammar, Frank Doss and Lonna Clark; history, Ed Guess; phonics, Claude Schwab.

ALICE BROWNING, Teacher.

Still After the Boys.

Last Saturday Deputy United States Marshal Cosby was in this county again. This time he took Ole Simmons, of Dycusburg, to Paducah, to answer to the charge of selling liquor without licenses from the Federal government. Mr. Simmons is charged with selling at the Piney camp-meeting. This makes three of the boys who have been arrested, charged with the same offense, at the same place and time. It is said that there are warrants for others. If the arrests continue, the Piney camp-meeting will probably be without any disturbance of that character this year.

ALICE MITCHELL

Still Confined In An Asylum—Condition Hopeless.

Memphis, March 2.—When the legislative visiting committee went through the West Tennessee Insane Asylum at Bolivar yesterday their attention was naturally directed more to Alice Mitchell than to all the other patients put together. They found the slayer of her girl sweetheart in the physical condition. She has never been sick a day in the nine months of her confinement. She has gained twenty pounds in weight and is as handsome a girl as one could wish to see. Mentally, however, she shows no improvement. She seems content with her lot, and has very little to say about the outside world. When the name of Freda Ward is mentioned she seems subdued by sad recollections for the moment, but the influence soon passes away, leaving her just as joyous as ever. Her favorite diversion is playing the French harp, which she does frequently for the entertainment of the patients, all of whom have the greatest affection for her. Before the tragedy of twelve months ago she was a skillful performer on the piano, but she is unable to stretch an octave now, owing to having severed the tendons in two fingers of her right hand in lancing the razor with which she cut her victim's throat. The hand is not deformed but the injured fingers have lost their former flexibility. She is frequently visited by members of her family and seems glad to see them, but shows no grief at their departure. The most skeptical are now convinced that the girl's malady is genuine, and the asylum physicians have no hopes of her recovery.

"The Mackaye Spectatorium."

"The Mackaye Spectatorium" is a building now in process of construction at the North and of Jackson Park on the lake shore, Chicago, in which is to be given, during the continuance of the Columbian Exposition, a noble and adequate presentation of the incidents intimately connected with the first great voyage of Columbus. This conception, which is strange and seemingly impossible of realization, originated with Mr. Steele Mackaye, who submitted his ideas to a party of Chicago's leading financiers, about a year ago. They were at once convinced that his ideas were worthy of support and immediately gave him the requisite backing to the extent of about two millions of dollars; since then the work has been pushed forward with all possible speed. The building itself is strictly original and during its departure from the conventionalities of architecture and will, when completed, run more than favorably with the best in "The White City." This building and its immense power houses and studies will occupy about 382,040 square feet of ground, the main building covering a ground area of nearly 200,000 square feet. The company which will push it forward to completion and stand sponsor for its artistic and high class features is composed of many of the best known gentlemen of Chicago, men of almost national reputation whose names are not often found in anything of this kind; such men as George M. Pullman, Lyman J. Gage, Marry Nelson, Benj. Butterworth, Franklin H. Hall, J. O. Hinkley, Genl A. C. McClurg, E. B. Butler, E. W. Gillett, Ferd and Clarence Peck, H. E. Bucklen, E. L. Brewster, H. W. Weaver and others of like prominence.

In Memoriam.

These lines are written in remembrance of little Emma E. daughter of R. W. and E. J. Vanhoosier, who was born on the 16th of August 1889, and died February the 21st, 1893. She was sick only two days, suddenly was she called from her home and loved ones here, to be a companion to angels and sainted spirits on that celestial shore. Her mother said little Emma would talk like a grown person and loved everybody that she knew. She would often sing "I want to go where Jesus is," "In the harvest field there is work to do," and "Blessed be the name of the Lord."

She was the light of the family and every one that knew her, loved her, but she has gone. No more on earth will we hear her sweet voice singing. The home that was once made glad by the light of her presence is now dark and lonely. Christ who loved and blessed little Emma while he was here on earth has taken her to Himself. Dear parents you can follow on like a star, little Emma shines in glory; to draw your hearts closer to God and Heaven. Perhaps she was only given to make heaven seem nearer and sweeter to you. Yes, when death claims our precious little ones with aching hearts we give them up not without hope from the cold grave we look up by faith to that beautiful home on high and say not lost but gone before.

NOTICE.

My men are now riding to collect the taxes due me. They have instructions to collect or levy as they go. To save myself I am bound to do this, and there will be no exceptions from this rule. I must have the money, and all those indebted must govern themselves accordingly. I mean this and nothing less. A. L. Cruce,

DIED.

Miss Addie Mitchell, of Salem, Ky., in the 22nd Year of Her Age.

"As Curfew knells departing day,
So each breeze bears some loved one away."
On the river on the golden strand,
They'll welcome us to a better land.
With sad hearts and deep sympathy for the bereaved family and loving friends, we chronicle the death of Miss Addie, commonly known as "Addie," who after a short but painful illness, went to sleep in "the everlasting arms of Jesus," at 12:20 p. m., Wednesday, Feb. 15, 1893. She joined the M. E. Church, South, about six years ago, and lived a consistent Christian life and died in the triumph of a living faith with praises on her lips almost to the last minute. Just before her last sleep she tried to sing, "All the way to Calvary he came for me," and said to her father, and the doctor, "I feel so good this morning," several times. She said "I am willing to go and I want all of you to meet me there."

We miss her now, but we'll "wait and mourn no more," for some bright day we will meet her here. Bright, beautiful, beaming smiles. Yes, your father and mother, brothers, sisters, friends and relatives, are all mourning. Coming to meet her whom we cherished and loved so much here. We will journey on, stand on, pray on, watch on, rejoice and sing on, till Jesus comes, and then, and then, and then, will meet to part no more, for we'll never say good bye in Heaven.

Farewell Addie, "for then life's fitful dreams are o'er. You tread life's weary rounds no more," though your life has made our hearts to bleed, yet, God knows best and he shall wipe all tears from our eyes. To her bereaved family we would say, "mourn not for her, as though you had not hope," but look up and march on, for "there is a land that is fairer than day," where Addie is and waits for thee. "What a wonderful Saviour!"
A FRIEND.
